IPL LASER FACIAL THREADS VEIN TREATMENT

Thread veins or telangiectasias are small, superficial, red, purple or blue veins which can appear anywhere on the body but most frequently on the face. They can be 1- 3mm in diameter and occur when the vein dilates to become large enough to be visible through the skin. Thus, they are generally more of a problem for fairer skin types. They are often classified according to their appearance as linear, branching or spider telangiectasia. Medically they are not serious but cosmetically they can be distressing to many of us. Laser can easily disperse the veins leaving you with a clear and healthier complexion.
